Brighten your smile like never before!

No one likes having yellow teeth. It's embarrassing, and depending upon how frequently you drink coffee or wine, or smoke or eat candy - your teeth can reflect ALL of your bad habits.

We created Whitening Coach to help people just like you transform your smile into something you can be proud of. Since many teeth whitening formulas out there promise the world but don't deliver, we consulted with the best and came up with the formula.

Whitening Coach contains 22% carbamide peroxide. So if you want dentist-office-quality results when you whiten your teeth, try Whitening Coach.

Indigo Systems, LLC (an authorized reseller of Blizzard White)'s No-Hassle Product Return Policy

You can cancel in these easy ways: go to www.BlizzardWhiteUltra.com and click on the Easy Cancel Button at the top of the page or call our customer service center at 1-866-229-2823 / 08712847542 or via written correspondence to Indigo Systems, LLC (an authorized reseller of Blizzard White) 7565 Commercial Way, Unit E Henderson, NV 89011. If you return the Snow White Club Program and it is unopened with its seal intact and in good, marketable condition without package blemishes, you will not be charged for the product.

For subsequent shipments in the Snow White Club program, you may only return the most recent complete shipment for credit. We do not charge a restocking fee. As long as the product is unopened with its seal intact and in good, marketable condition without package blemishes, you will be refunded the complete amount you were charged for the product. If the product needs to be either destroyed (seal or packaging was broken or torn) or repackaged (it is returned in a non-marketable condition), then a $19.60 destruction/repackaging fee will be charged to your credit card (UK customers excluded).

To receive a refund for a returned product from an ongoing product shipment (not a Web-Only exclusive offer shipment), you must request an RMA (Returned Merchandise Authorization Number) within 30 days of the last shipment and this RMA must be written on the package in order for credit to be issued. All shipping charges are the responsibility of the customer. Although you can return product from an ongoing Snow White Club shipment, you cannot return product from the Web-Only exclusive offer once the Web-Only exclusive offer has elapsed and you have been billed for the product.

Declaration of Christopher Hundycz
FTC Visual Information Specialist

DECLARATION OF CHRISTOPHER HUNDYCZ
Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1746

I, Christopher Hundycz, have personal knowledge of the facts set forth below. If called as a witness, I could and would testify as follows:

1. I am over 18 years of age and am employed by the Federal Trade Commission ("FTC") as a Visual Information Specialist in the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection ("BCP"), and specifically in its Consumer and Business Education Office. My work address is 600 Pennsylvania Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20580.

2. I hold an Associate's Degree in Liberal Arts from Danville Community College and graduated with a Bachelors in Science for Information Science and Systems from Radford University in May, 2010.

3. I have worked for the FTC as a Visual Information Specialist since September 2010. In this capacity, I work on and maintain the FTC's consumer and business facing websites. I also assist trial attorneys and investigators within BCP with IT services such as domain registry management and web development tasks.

4. In my capacity as a Visual Information Specialist at the FTC, I was assigned to work on the matter FTC v. RevMountain, LLC, et al., in January, 2017.

5. On January 26th, 2017, FTC attorney Sarah Waldrop asked me to create a working copy of a website for a company called Smile Pro Direct, which sold teeth whitening products. In other words, I was asked to recreate the Smile Pro Direct website and make it interactive. I will refer to the Smile Pro Direct website I recreated as the "Test Website."

6. I created the Test Website by using the programs Snagit and Camtasia in a computer lab with external internet connections and various IP addresses that allow us to browse websites.

7. Snagit allows me to download a website's code, including a website's html, javascript, stylesheets and images. It also allows me to save the code locally to a computer or network for use offline. From my understanding, Snagit cannot download certain server side scripts and processes from the website servers themselves. Scripts, which are sets of instructions telling the server what to do, enable websites to, among other things, process online transactions.

8. Crystal Ostrum, an FTC investigator, completed an online buy on the Smile Pro Direct website on March, 9th, 2017. I sat with her while she did this and used Snagit to download the website's code on each page. I was able to see how the Smile Pro Direct website looks and responds when a user submits credit card and personal information for payment. I was then able to fill in the gaps the missing scripts created by writing the code necessary to mimic the way the online payment processing and card authentication pages look.

9. The Test Website was a dummy site, however, meaning a user could not complete an online transaction on it because the Test Website was unable to process or charge credit cards. Accordingly, I modified the Test Website, though use of appropriate code, to mimic these effects and allow users to experience the complete online checkout process. This was the only modification I performed to the Test Website.

10. I created the Test Site to function exactly the same way as the Smile Pro Direct website I observed during Ms. Ostrum's purchase. The only differences between the Test Website and the Smile Pro Direct Website are that the Test Website site does not actually create an order, internet connection, database connection, or charge.

11. Before I finalized the Test Website, Dr. Florian Schaub, a human-computer interaction expert, compared it to videos and snapshots of defendants' websites which were provided to him by the FTC case team. Dr. Schaub spoke with me about his observations. I made some corrections to the Test Website based on Dr. Schaub's review and comparison.

12. Creating the Test Website took about two months to complete.

13. A true and correct recording of an interaction with the Test Website is attached to my declaration as Attachment A.

14. True and correct copies of snapshots of the Test Website's landing page, billing information page, processing order pages, complete checkout page, and transaction confirmation page are attached to my declaration as Attachments B, C, D, E, and F.

15. When I finished creating the Test Website and it operated as it does online, I placed a copy of it on a shared drive used by the FTC v. RevMountain, LLC, et al. case team so that the team members would be able to access it.

16. My understanding is that the case team sent a copy of the completed Test Website to Florian Schaub via Accellion, a secure file transfer service used by the FTC.

17. I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

Executed in Washington, DC, this 11th day of July 2017.

5 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

7 FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION,

8 Plaintiff,

9 v.

DECLARATION OF ANDREW
CHEN PURSUANT TO
28 U.S.C. § 1746

12 1. I, Andrew Chen, hereby state that I have personal knowledge of the 13 matters and facts set forth in this declaration and, if called upon to testify, I could 14 and would testify as follows:

15 2. I make this declaration for submission in the above captioned matter. I 16 have been employed by Visa U.S.A. Inc. since August 28, 2000. Visa U.S.A. Inc.
17 is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Visa Inc., a Delaware stock corporation 18 headquartered in San Francisco, California ("Visa Inc." and, together with its 19 subsidiaries, "Visa").
20

DECLARATION OF ANDREW CHEN

1 3. I have been the Head of Global Acceptance Risk Policy and Strategy
2 since July 2015. Prior to that, I was a Business Leader for Visa's U.S. Acceptance
3 Risk team beginning on March 16, 2010. As part of my responsibilities, I oversee
4 the implementation of the Visa Chargeback Monitoring Program ("VCMP")
5 globally, and I am familiar with Visa's business practices, procedures, and records.
6 The following information pertains to the period beginning on March 16, 2010,
7 when I became a Business Leader for Visa's U.S. Acceptance Risk team, to the 8 present. I have been designated by Visa to provide this information, and I am
9 stating information known or reasonably available to Visa.

10 4. Visa is a global payment technology company, providing processing
11 services to thousands of financial institutions for credit, debit, and prepaid payment
12 transactions. Visa owns and manages the Visa brand, which provides the assurance 13 of acceptance at millions of merchant outlets and approximately 2 million ATMs
14 in more than 200 countries and territories worldwide. Visa processes electronic 15 payment transactions over its network, VisaNet. Visa also supports and enhances 16 its brand with advertising, marketing, and sponsorships.

17 5. Visa's financial institution clients issue payment cards to consumers
18 and others under Visa's trademark, and each financial institution that issues Visa-
19 branded cards independently determines the terms and conditions of credit
20 extensions, the number of cards to issue, and the interest rates and fees to charge

1 cardholders, among other things. These financial institutions are known as 2 “issuers” or “issuing banks.”

3 6. Visa’s financial institution clients also contract with merchants who 4 want to accept Visa-branded payment cards to pay for sales the merchants
5 generate. The financial institutions that do so then “acquire” the sales transactions
6 that their merchants generate with Visa-branded cards. These financial institutions
7 are known as “acquirers,” “acquiring banks” or “merchant banks.”

8 Visa Chargeback Monitoring Program (“VCMP”)

9 8. Visa’s Acceptance Risk Group manages, among other things, the 10 VCMP and its predecessors the Merchant Chargeback Monitoring Program and the 11 Global Merchant Chargeback Monitoring Program. Visa implemented the VCMP,
12 and its predecessors, to monitor the sales and chargeback rates of U.S. merchants 13 and to respond with corrective measures when a merchant is found to have 14 excessive chargeback activity, as explained below.

15 9. A “chargeback” is a transaction that an issuer returns to an acquirer. A 16 chargeback typically occurs when a cardholder contacts his or her issuing bank to 17 dispute a charge appearing on the cardholder’s account statement and the issuing 18 bank charges that amount back to the acquiring bank. For instance, a cardholder 19 might seek a chargeback of what he or she believes is an unauthorized charge.
20 Chargebacks can also occur for operational reasons that do not require a cardholder

1 dispute. Subject to certain rights of representment by the acquiring bank and,
2 ultimately, arbitration between the financial institutions, acquiring banks are liable
3 under the Visa rules to the issuing bank for successful chargebacks. Accordingly,
4 Visa transfers the chargeback amount from the acquiring bank to the issuing bank
5 when an issuing bank makes a successful chargeback.

6 10. U.S. merchants are identified in the VCMP when the following two 7 conditions are met in the previous calendar month: (1) they have at least 100
8 chargebacks and (2) they have a chargeback rate of at least 1%. The chargeback
9 rate is calculated as a ratio. The numerator is the number of transactions through 10 the VisaNet system in a particular month that are first charged back to the 11 acquiring bank with respect to a particular merchant. The denominator is the total
12 number of sales transactions charged through the VisaNet system by the merchant
13 during the preceding month. The threshold level to trigger the VCMP is a 1% 14 chargeback rate. VCMP monitors the domestic and international chargeback and 15 sales activity. Visa launched the VCMP in January 2016 and sunset the legacy 16 chargeback programs described further below.

17 11. Prior to January 2016 in the U.S., Visa operated the Merchant
18 Chargeback Monitoring Program ("MCMP") and the Global Merchant Chargeback
19 Monitoring Program ("GMCMP"). Collectively, these two programs were the 20 legacy chargeback programs. The MCMP monitored a U.S. merchant's domestic

1 and international chargeback and sales activity. It identified merchants when the 2 following three conditions were met in the previous calendar month: (1) they had 3 at least 100 sales transactions; (2) they had at least 100 chargebacks; and (3) they
4 had a chargeback rate of at least 1%. The GMCMP monitored a U.S. merchant's
5 international chargeback and sales activity only and identified U.S. merchants
6 when the following three conditions were met in the previous calendar month:
7 (1) they had at least 200 international sales transactions; (2) they had at least 200 8 chargebacks on international transactions; and (3) they had a chargeback rate of at 9 least 2% on international transactions. The chargeback rate for both the MCMP
10 and GMCMP was calculated as a ratio in the manner described in paragraph 10.

11 12. When a merchant's sales and chargeback activity exceeds the VCMP
12 conditions in the previous month, the Acceptance Risk Group contacts the 13 merchant's acquiring bank and informs the bank that the chargeback ratio must be 14 reduced. If the merchant's chargeback ratio continues to meet or exceed 1% in 15 successive months and the chargeback count meets or exceeds 100, Visa employs 16 an escalating set of responses ranging from ordering the creation of a Chargeback
17 Reduction Plan, to imposing fees on the acquirer, to disqualifying the merchant 18 from participating in the Visa payment system. This process was similar for 19 merchants whose sales and chargeback activity exceeded the MCMP and GMCMP
20 conditions described in paragraph 11.

1 13. Based on my experience managing Visa's chargeback monitoring
2 programs from March 16, 2010 through the present, merchant chargeback rates of 3 1% and higher can be an indication of a problem involving the merchant, including 4 unauthorized charges to a cardholder's account and deceptive marketing practices, 5 such as incorrect statements regarding an offer or a failure to disclose clearly and
6 conspicuously the terms and conditions of an offer.

7 14. It has been Visa's experience that some merchants have learned how 8 to evade detection of high chargebacks, thereby avoiding having to comply with 9 VCMP requirements relating to reducing chargeback rates.

10 15. For instance, merchants and their payment processors sometimes 11 lower the risk of detection by using dynamic descriptors and load-balancing. In 12 some cases, the merchant's payment processor can rotate billing descriptors on a 13 sale-by-sale basis, thereby reducing the chargebacks associated with any particular 14 billing descriptor. If a merchant or payment processor uses this technique, then we 15 say that the merchant is using dynamic descriptors. Merchants and payment 16 processors may use dynamic descriptors to load balance sales across multiple 17 descriptors and merchant accounts and thereby may lessen the risk of exceeding 18 the 1% chargeback threshold and avoid being identified in the VCMP.

19 16. Moreover, merchants selling products may structure the sales
20 transaction so that it assesses multiple charges of greatly differing amounts against

1 cardholders' accounts to increase the overall number of sales transactions. In 2 Visa's experience, merchants wishing to structure sales in this manner often do so
3 by charging consumers for: (1) a "primary product" at a relatively high amount
4 (such as $59.95) and (2) one or more secondary products (often termed "upsells")
5 or shipping fees at a much lower amount (such as $2.95 and $7.95).

6 17. This can have at least two effects. First, the multiple charges greatly 7 increase the denominator in Visa's chargeback ratio formula. Second, even if 8 cardholders perceive that all of the merchant's charges were unauthorized, in 9 Visa's experience cardholders are less likely to seek a chargeback for the much 10 smaller charges because of the time and effort it takes to do so.

11 18. For example, a merchant might structure a transaction with a primary
12 product at $59.95 and two upsells at $2.95 and $7.95. If, as in Visa's experience 13 often happens, the consumer only seeks a chargeback for the higher amount and 14 overlooks the two smaller amounts, the Visa system will show three sales but only 15 one chargeback for that merchant. This is true even if the issuer independently 16 refunds a cardholder for the two smaller charges.

17 19. Thus, by selling a primary product at a high price and one or more 18 upsells at much lower prices, a merchant can greatly increase its total number of 19 sales without increasing the number of chargebacks, thereby increasing the 20 likelihood that it may be able to keep its chargeback ratio below the 1% threshold.

1 20. Visa is aware that merchants also occasionally attempt to use prepaid
2 cards to process small transactions involving their own products or services. Such 3 small "purchases" can increase the overall number of transactions the merchants
4 have in a given month, thereby artificially lowering the chargeback rates.

5 21. Visa is also aware that some merchants avoid detection by opening
6 new merchant accounts with acquirer banks using entirely different company
7 names. These merchants will set up new corporations or limited liability
8 companies to act as "fronts" to obtain new merchant accounts to continue 9 processing the merchant's sales.

10 22. Identifying deceptive conduct by merchants trying to avoid the VCMF
11 is challenging, but Visa continuously reviews and monitors problematic merchant 12 activity and works with its financial institution clients to try and identify such 13 merchants.

14 23. Based on my experience managing Visa's chargeback monitoring
15 programs from March 16, 2010 through the present, merchants that deliberately 16 attempt to evade the VCMF through the tactics specified above may also be 17 merchants that place unauthorized charges on cardholders' credit card statements, 18 use false statements to sell their products, or fail to disclose clearly and 19 conspicuously the terms and conditions of an offer.

1 24. I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and 2 correct.
